Instruments Care

How to Prevent Staining & Rust on Stainless Steel Instruments?

To prevent staining, pitting, and rust on stainless steel instruments and extend their life:

- › Rinse instruments immediately after use; remove blood and saline.
- › Dry thoroughly before storage to avoid moisture-related corrosion.
- › Avoid prolonged soaking in cold sterilization solutions; rinse with distilled water and dry.
- › Use only approved surgical instrument cleaners (no caustic cleaners).
- › Maintain your autoclave and use clean/filtered water to prevent mineral stains.
- › Ensure wraps are well-rinsed to remove bleach residues.
- › Do not soak instruments in corrosive chemicals (chlorides, iodine, acids, etc.).
- › Do not sterilize stainless steel with chrome-plated instruments.
- › Allow proper drying in the autoclave; avoid opening too quickly after cycles.

Following these steps helps keep instruments rust-free, stain-free, and long-lasting.
